

Title: Archive film - bringing collections together

Abstract: This paper will explore issues and challenges arising from bringing dispersed film and media archive collections together online. Drawing on the EUScreenXL project amongst others; issues of metadata, ethics, value, user experience and challenges for film archives in the digital age will be raised.

Bio:

Elaine Sheppard is Collections Development Manager at Screen Archive South East (SASE), at the University of Brighton. Elaine has a background in film and television archival research and collection management. At SASE she manages the archive's online digital resources and public access projects along with contributing to the development of online resources and metadata projects within the wider UK and European film archive sector.